Vision

The name 'Pashmina' is derived from the Persian word for wool. The fine wool comes from the undercoat of the Himalayan Mountain Goat,(Changyra aka Capra Hircus) which lives in the most remote regions of the Himalayan regions. Pashmina is the softest, exotically delicate and weightless wool of inner part of the goat which is screened several times to get very few amount of pashmina. This goat is available in the high mountain areas, above 12000 ft. from the sea level. luxury fashion, accessories, home furnishings and gift items.As a leading exporter of Handicraft, we value for customers more than anything else. We want to utilize our knowledge in providing the best quality products from Nepal to our clients to satisfy their business requirements. We also want to establish a strong relationship with our potential clients as well as strengthen our bond with the current clients. We wish to comprehensive and trustworthy services to our clients every time they call us. We are committed for providing the best customer care service of this industry.
